What's New

New and improved web sites abound this month. HUD User debuts a new web site this week and the Federal Registry recently updated to a new more user-friendly web site as well.

If you poke around the HUD.gov site, you'll find a new look on the Secure Systems information pages. If you click on Murphy Consulting's site, you'll find a new corporate logo along with expanded articles, news and information links.

See our Helpful Links section below to access these new and improved web sites.

HUD Tip of the Week: Data Base Corrections

Did you know?

HUD Project Managers can no longer make HUD Data Base Corrections for you in iREMS.

If you are not currently set up with access to APPS, do not delay.

Heard it on the Street

We hear the H1N1 Flu had 50% of REAC's Appeals Review staff out sick last week.

If you've been waiting for a while to hear on an appeal, you may have to wait just a bit longer.

We wish all a speedy recovery.

Company or Individual information changes, such as address, phone, e-mail or name changes must be made by owners and managers in the APPS sub-system.

Murphy Consulting helps businesses with APPS set up, navigating and 2530 submissions. Contact us today!

REAC Tip of the Week: Elevator Equipment Rooms

Did you know?

Beginning on January 4, 2010 REAC Inspectors are not to enter or inspect rooms that house only elevator equipment.

Don't get too excited just yet about this long awaited guidance. Inspectors can still enter the elevator equipment room if it provides the only access to another inspectable area. Additionally, they can inspect the elevator room if it houses other inspectable items not associated with elevators.

Read REAC's 2-page Property Requirements for the Inspection of Elevator Equipment Rooms carefully, so that you understand the requirements.

Prepare, Mitigate and Succeed. If you need help preparing for a REAC Inspection, contact Murphy Consulting for a referral to a qualified pre-inspection team.
